ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Types of color profiles, which are loadable into a printer, are associated and managed for every page description language (PDL) capable of being interpreted by the printer, a desired type of color profile, which is loadable into the printer, is identified based upon the types of color profiles managed, and the type of color profile identified is displayed, thereby making it possible for a user to simply determine the type of color profile that can be loaded.